I am sure many of you will not understand or agree with Homeopathy as a way of treating your animal but it is a safe and efficient way of caring for your Pet's health and many Insurance Companies now accept Claims for Alternative Treatments. We have just found out that Virgin will insure your dog fully on Homeopathic Vaccines which is a huge step and we suggest that you check out their website.

Our biggest concern is Vaccine. It is not specifically the actual Vaccine that causes the damage, but the 'fillers' which contain a number of Ingredients harmful to your Pet. I list below the only available list at the moment of What's in a Vaccine. It is these that cause the damage not the Vaccine.

It is normal for your normal Veterinarian to try and convince you into giving Vaccines, Wormers and Flea Treatments by basically just being pushy. These treatments are harmful chemicals. You would not use them yourself or on a child so why on your Pet? You are risking a lot of health issues: Allergies, skin complaints, digestive disorders, Epilepsy and numerous other problems known to be caused by Vaccines.

However, I have been doing this job long enough to realise that most people do give in to Vaccines. Either through pressure from their Veterinarian or because they wish to take the dog to a Training Class. So if you must Vaccinate can I offer some advice which will meet your needs and which will allow me to help your Pet from being severely damaged.

If you think about this sensibly you have to stop and wonder why people make such a fuss about your dog being Vaccinated to go to a Training Class. If all the other dogs are Vaccinated 'properly' they are at no risk from infection. If they are at risk, then the Vaccines are a waste of time and they obviously don't work. It is as simple as that. Your dog cannot give them any disease as they are protected!!!! However, I cannot promise you your dog will never be ill and neither can your Veterinarian. Pups are open to disease but if you are sensible, nothing will happen to them. If there is an outbreak of Parvo for example, and your pup catches it, your Veterinarian has no magic Vaccine to cure it. He/She can give IV Fluids and that's about it really. We on the other hand, treat each symptom so find that we can in these cases, be of more help using Homeopathy. It is all 'the luck of the draw' with or without Vaccines.

So to Vaccines:

First of all it is possible to give one round of Puppy Vaccines, and follow up every 6 months with a dose of Homeopathic Vaccine.

If you do Vaccinate or wish to do so, then we advise very strongly the use of Homeopathic Vaccines prior to normal vaccines to prepare the system in a more gentle manner and a Detox to make sure that no toxins are residual in the Liver and Kidneys. The following year, do the Homeopathic Vaccine route and your animal is covered. It is no longer necessary legally for your dog to be vaccinated annually but every 3 years. It is not 'legal' according to the Vaccine Manufacturers to vaccinate any animal not 100% fit. Your Vet is aware of this.

If you wish to be ultra careful you could take the dog annually for blood titers which test the anti bodies to disease. My own dog is now 10 and is still showing anti bodies to her first and only Vaccines when she was a puppy so she has a good strong immune system. We would be delighted to help you and advise you through the process if that is the way you would like to try and go. Hopefully you are feeding a good diet so your dog is strong and healthy.

For worming our Homeopathic wormers are excellent. They do work but without causing any damage to the dog's insides. Along with the Wormer we suggest our Bowelease which just eases any digestive discomfort the worming may cause and again, it acts as a 'detox' for the lower bowel area. You will see Worms. This means the treatment is working. The difference between our wormer and a chemical one is simple. A chemical wormer will kill worms but it does not mean the animal will pass them. Indeed I have heard from a very good breeder that one or two of her dogs on chemical wormers passed dead and decaying worms months after they were wormed. Imagine the damage decomposing worms could cause. Our wormer makes the gut inhospitable so the worms, live, try quickly to get out, hence you will see many live. It continues to work if you use it picking out worms hatched from eggs left so worming is vitally important. It also helps keep the body free of toxins, we find less Anal Gland disorders and digestive upsets in these dogs. I cannot apologise for the fact that it is 2 doses daily for 6 weeks as that is how it works best. Instructions are very clear but if you need confirmation of those again, I cannot help if you do not contact me. With some dogs who have been badly kept previously they can take several sessions of wormer to make things right. I am sorry if this is hard work for people but it is a lot kinder to the dog than chemicals ripping through their guts. Alternatively do faecal test at the Vet regularly for peace of mind.

Flea Treatments do not work as a rule. The best way to treat Fleas is when they appear. If you act quickly and follow our instructions, you can rid your dog of them within a few days. If you take our advice for general care when bathing and when you are out walking your dog, it may help prevent Fleas. Even if an animal is treated with Frontline/Advantage it can still get fleas. Both of these treatments are highly toxic and you can read about the side effects on the internet by doing a simple Google search for 'side effects of Frontline or Advantage' Most dog Fleas are actually Cat Fleas, sometimes Rabbit Fleas. If you want more information on quick treatment should your dog get Fleas, write or ring or e.mail. I will make up a spray if required but we do find the basic things discussed in that article sufficient most of the time. www.caninecaregroup.net article page, last article. OR ask for a copy.

Nobody is trying to force you into any decision you do not wish to make. We just feel that the best way of treating Pets is as naturally as possible. Many years ago we never heard of dogs having Cancer or Skin Allergies, Food Allergies, nor did we have the abundance of Dog Foods to choose from and dogs rarely got taken to the Vets. So progress has not been kind to our friends. Now we have a chance to pay them back for their kindness and trusting natures by not pushing unnecessary Chemicals into their bodies.

****All I ask is that you give things some thought and if you have any queries I would be happy to talk with you. Before going to the Vet ring me. If I am not happy I will advise you to go to the Vet and then follow up on the issue to see if we can reduce the damage homeopathically.

Often we can advise you on 'old fashioned home made remedies' or have some easy ways to treat many problems because we've been through them all between us so a phone call could save you time and money. I hope at some point to put a document together with all this on but at the moment, due to work, this is not possible. I will tell you all to keep in Epsom Salts, Honey, Bicarb.of Soda, Vitamin E capsules, Pumpkin *canned* from supermarkets, Eucalyptus, Tea Tree, Calendula Tea as that is good for wound treatment, a 5ml syringe, a couple of brown dropper bottles available at any Pharmacy, and for General First Aid we have a list of our own remedies which cover most eventualities in an emergency. If you have a dog nervous of Sounds, our Anxiety Remedy has never yet failed to stop that fear. We also do sound CD's if you prefer those in addition to the remedy.

My aim is not to force you but to educate you. I am on both sides of the fence. Veterinary and Homeopathy. I am wise enough and old enough to know which is best at any given time and would not compromise your dog's health so I do give unbiased, straight forward information and advice. There are things Homeopathy cannot cure and some things we can do better than the Vets. But if you have a dog with a possible allergy then pushing steroids and other drugs is just making the body struggle harder and they never work. Short term the dog will get relief but once the steroids stop the dog is back to square one. Whilst on steroids the dogs can be very 'down' and we can avoid this. We get to the root of the problem, get rid of that and that is the best way. It does take time, it is a commitment but if you love the dog then I am sure you are prepared to go that little extra half mile to keep it happy and healthy.

Allergies

Getting rid of allergies is like going round in circles. Your dog may start with some small spots on his tummy. These irritate the dog and the dog starts to scratch. Quite rightly you take the dog to the vet who treats these with Steroids and whilst they stop the scratching, they do not treat the root cause and are one of the worst toxins you can put into your animal. Once the steroid has worn off the condition returns and it is then treated more aggressively and this circle goes on until your dog's immune system can no longer function naturally. This is the start of the downward spiral to constant veterinary care and ill health. The rule of thumb is never to vaccinate a sick animal, but this is done and far too often for my liking. Unfortunately it is a problem that I come across during my work on a daily basis.

Some dogs do not appear to have any problem with vaccines but these are not getting few and far between. Often it is not the vaccination that causes the problem it is the ingredients within the vaccine that does the damage and this is where Alternative vaccination works as efficiently as normal vaccines. The dog is protected just the same but without any of the harmful side effects.

With rescue dogs, they are quite often in poor medical condition, and they suffer grief and stress through the ordeals they have gone through or simply being placed into a new home. There is one drug that is becoming well used called Clomicalm, but I prefer to use homeopathic remedies along with behaviour modification. The stress on a dog going into a new home is incredibly high and the behaviour problems displayed vary from tail chasing to total destruction of the home, separation anxiety to self damage. It can take a rescue dog in the area of 12 months or longer to completely settle into a new home and during this time you, the new owner, needs some back up. The minute you notice anything wrong with your dog you must get help before the condition be it physical or mental develops into a severe habit that becomes hard to break. Again this is where someone like myself can assist you. Call us Doggie Samaritans if you wish but that is the job we do. Advise on treatment be it medical or behaviour or both. The condition did not arise overnight nor will it disappear overnight. You need to WANT to help this dog and be prepared for many long hours of hard work. It is vital that the dog is happy both mentally and physically and that you exercise the dog according to the breed as they all have different traits that we can use to help you. As an example, a Border Collie is not a domestic dog. It is a working dog. A one hour trot around the block is not enough for this type of dog. It will lead to problems. If you cannot give it enough physical exercise it is vital that you ensure it has mental stimulation to ensure good health and good behaviour.

The CanineCareGroup along with many other good Trainers and Behaviourists would set you a modification programme, check the diet and help you sort out the best way of going around things to ensure everyone is happy. We advocate massage, games, the use of Essential Oils, Bach Remedies, and other Alternative remedies that help keep the animal calm whilst you work on the behaviour.

I suggest to all new owners of Dogs that they keep a short diary of what they do with the dog on a daily basis, note when vaccines were given or other medical treatment in case we can see a pattern forming. This information is invaluable to someone like me and it takes so little time to do. But, with this information to hand, we can very quickly explain to you what we think the problem is and how to 'cure' it.

Certain breeds of dogs have hereditary physical problems that exist and will in time show themselves, so it is worthwhile finding out more about the breed you are taking in to help you understand what you can expect and what you need to do to help your dog live a long and happy life.

You may think that giving your dog lots of treats is a good thing, but often it is not and can again contribute to allergic reactions. There are special treats one can buy for training, we use desiccated liver treats, which we find the dogs adore and they do no internal physical harm. To the best of my knowledge there is only one place in the UK that these can be purchased from and these are all I use in training. Rawhide chews and Pigs Ears are not good for your dog. You would be far better of buying the KONG toy which you can fill with good treats to keep your dog occupied and out of trouble when he is left alone.

Sometimes we try too hard to be kind to our dogs because they are rescue dogs. We overlook some of their behaviour. This doesn't help them at all. Dogs need to do something and to be kept disciplined and occupied.

Discipline, fun and good health go hand in hand.
